

Letter of Recommendation

Andrew Miner

Andrew Miner is a local contractor in Newport Beach, California, whom I have known and worked with for fourteen years. Andrew has built a wide range of projects for my clients and I can say he will make an excellent contractor for your project for the following reasons:

He has a great attitude toward construction with his optimistic outlook and enthusiasm for trying various ideas to make the project become reality. He has always been open with his approach to the clients and his flexibility to listen to their concerns is a huge asset in developing the project

He has a personal recognition of his own responsibilities of the completion of the project and shows respect towards others at all levels in completion of the project on time and on budget. I know he has maintained a close group of sub-contractors for the entire time I have known him and it shows in the common respect others have for him.

He has a desire to learn about my field of architecture as it related to developing projects and shares his ideas for the planning of projects and executing the work. The projects are a great success due to his up front planning as a team and execution of the projects under his personal direction.

I think his years of building experience on projects in the Newport Beach area is an asset that cannot be matched by many contractors. I can say without hesitation that he will make an excellent contractor for your next project.

Sincerely,

Bill Caskey
